MORTAL GODS

Cassandra Dealing With the Sitiyation?

pg 25 "Cassandra weaver stood off to the side, as she had on every Tuesday and Friday afternoon since they'd buried him. Sundays were too crowded, and she hated the sound of other mourners, the ones who knew how to mourn and what to say."

- Cassandra is standing to the side of the god of sun (Apollo, Aidan Baxter)'s grave. She goes on days when there are not many people around. This shows when she is sad she doesn't want many people around. This is the same with me, when I go to see my dog I go early in the morning so noone can distracted me and the night air is nice.

pg 25 "Her fingers reached out and traced the air in front of his name. Aidan Baxter, beloved son and friend. Every day in the cemetery she thought she'd say something that needed to be said but she never spoke."

- Cassandra wants to say something but doesn't know what to say. She want to say how she feels but doesn't know how to word it. I often do the same when I'm talking to a person on a celebration I want to say something about how I feel in this celebration but I can't word it.

pg 26 "Odysseus stepped up beside Cassandra and laced his fingers through her hair, drawing it over her shoulder like a brown curtain."

- Cassandra is standing at the side with Odyesseus at her side. Odyesseus seem to not have a strong connection with Apollo. Aidan Baxter (God of the sun) as Cassandra did. people in my life who do that too. some of my family didn't have a close relationship with our day so they don't see standing there pointless. ✓ pg20 "She asked him to be her alarm clock. Time in the cemetery tended to stretch out, and she didn't have hours to lose." ✓

- Has ask Odyesseus to tell her when it's time to go but she finds it hard to keep track of time. This same with me sometimes I have no idea how long I've been standing there. ✓ pg20 "Looking past Odysseus, Cassandra could almost see her standing quietly near the edge of the cemetery in the copse of bare winter trees. She'd used to lean against a monument of a weeping angel, looking bored, untill Cassandra snapped at her and said she was being disrespectful." ✓

- Cassandra has shown agian that she is that care for the dead and will stop anybody is being disrespectful. also hate any one who is disrespectful the sleeping of a dead person. ✓ pg20 "Cassandra's hands tingled and burned even at the thought of Aphrodite's name. They'd spent two months looking, Athena and Hermes both. They threw lines out in all directions, and still Aphrodite was nowhere to be found." ✓

- Cassandra is having a flash back on when they looking for some gods.

It shows how disspointed she is on not find him. I went to look for something In mind backyard. I was so disspointed that could find it. I was about 3 years old.

pg26 "Cassandra flexed her fingers to drive the burn away, and to drive Aphrodite from her thoughts. "Cold?" she asked.

- This shows that Cassandra is to drive Aphrodite out of her mind because it burns. When I get disspointed I feel burn in my head. So try and push out of head.

pg27 "We can go. Thanks for coming with me."

- Cassandra thanks Odysseus for coming with her even though he came because he was bored and care about the god of the sun. Thank a person coming with me to some place that bring back meroimes because they give time to that might have nothing to do with them.

pg27 "Cassandra looked at the marker."

- Cassandra is taking one last look at the grave stone. I do this when I leave something behind.

pg27 "She'd loved him from the minute she saw him, without ever knowing what he really was. Who was she to say what he'd do, or what he'd feel? I knew him in two lives, and not at all. She remembered what he'd done to her in Troy—driving her insane, cursing her to never be believed—and she hated him. But she also remembered the sound of his voice and the last look in his eyes. He was there, underneath the drift, and she'd give anything to reach down and pull him out of it. Even if it was only to scream into his face. Damn You, Aidan. You were never this infuriating when you were alive. Come BACK, so I can tell you so." Beloved son and friend," she read. "If they only knew That it isn't the half of it. That it isn't the half of it. That they'd have needed a gravestone a mile long to tell the whole story." She shook her head. "Four words. It's not enough." Odysseus put his arm around her and tugged her close. He took a deep breath, and kissed her close. He took a deep breath and kissed her head."

- Cassandra is remembering how close her and Aidan Baxter was and how nice it was back in Troy. I remember the in days when a had I friend her name was Amaber and she was like Aidan Baxter. We were really close.

pg27 "Cassandra and Odysseus walked into the ice arena and found Andie waiting on the steps leading up from the locker room."

- This is a amizing time for Cassandra because wants to get Andie using a a sword. When I get someone to use things I do the same.

pg28 "First one done?" Cassandra asked, descending the stairs."

- This shows the cassandra like to interact with people. I'm a bit the same.

pg28 "Still time to turn it around."

- Cassandra always look on bright side and help people feel better. This girl had lost her game so Cassandra made her feel better. I like to do this too.

pg28 "The sheer booming volume of Andie's shout made Cassandra flinch."

- Cassandra was surprised by how loud Andie was. I can get surprised too by volume.

pg28 "Yeah. It's funny, but I don't really care that much. Did You know?" she asked Cassandra. "That the season was going to blow?" Cassandra shrugged. Of course she had."

- Andie is winding up Cassandra just playfully. She is playing along eventhough she doesn't want to. I also play along with stuff I'm not into.

pg28 "Cassandra's eyes clouded with memories of overgrown jungle leaves streaked with blood. The slim girl with brown and silver hair chased down by a pack of ravenous who knew what. She could almost smell the blood and the rich black dirt. "Yeah," Cassandra said, taking a breath. "But it's the only vision we have to go on. And you know Athena. Any chance for another soldier is a chance too good to pass up." "Don't be unfair," Odysseus said, sneaking up behind them."

- Cassandra is think back to when they were in overgrown jungle and useing it in converstion. I think like this too. When I don't know what to say I just think of something that happen to me.

pg29 "An ancient Greek hero, matriculating at Kincade High so he could dog Cassandra's Foot steps"

- An ancient Greek hero want to be like Cassandra but Cassandra doesn't like that. Because she want noone to be like her. This is the same with me.

pg28 "Andie asked referring to Athena's new house, a few streets over from Cassandra's own, where she lived with Hermes and Odysseus. "I'll come with you guys can stop off and let me shower." "When's your car supposed to be fixed?" Cassandra asked."

- Cassandra is tring to stop Andie coming with them but it not go too well

too well. When I don't Someone to come I think of Something that keep busy for a while.

pg 31 "Cassandra Snorted in Spite of herself."
Cassandra is not happy about how Hermes thinks hes awesome.